- (b) Read the passage and answer the questions.

Freud traces all art to the fantasies, that is, the day –dreams or waking wish fulfillments of the artist. The artist wants honour , power, riches, fame and love of women, but being unable to get these in the real world he has to do the best he can by imagining or pretending that he has got them. So far he doesn't differ from the rest of us. What makes him an artist is the curious faculty he possesses of elaborating his day-dreams so that they lose that personal note which grates upon strange years, and become enjoyable for others? As we others also like a good wish fulfillment dream, we are now ready to pay for the privilege of sharing his. Thus, for the artist, as Freud says, there is a path through fantasy back to reality, by publishing his mere dreams of honour, power, riches, fame and the love of women: he acquires honour, power, riches, fame and the love of women in reality.

- (i) What does Freud say about the artist?
(ii) Why do artists imagine and dream of?
(iii) Explain how the artist is different from us.
(iv) What is the path through fantasy back to reality?
